Riviera Resort

San Eugenio Alto

Our luxurious development has only 3 villas remaining, each with 4 bedrooms, 4 bathrooms, a private swimming pool, and fantastic views!

Presented by:
SVYZ Inversiones y Construcciones SL!

Located in one of the most prestigious residential environments in Southern Tenerife, this lovely development consists of 5 independent villas and 8 semi-detached villas - all enjoying wonderful views of the Atlantic Ocean and unique sunsets.

Each of the last remaining villas has 4 bedrooms, an integrated open plan kitchen and spacious living room, lots of leisure space: gardens, wide terraces with wooden parquet floors, air conditioning and private, 'infinity' pools with underwater, LED coloured lighting.

Riviera Resort properties offer an extraordinarily high quality of living due to their spaciousness, luminosity, the tranquillity of the environment, and security (one of the most important aspects of life in Tenerife). Whether you are looking for a luxury residence in which to live and spend the long summer or winter seasons, or you are an investor, you will find a high return on your investment here when acquiring one of these wonderful properties.

Our villas represent excellent value at the Prices offered - compared with second-hand prices of adjacent, similar properties - which are already quite old and would need substantial amounts of money spent on them to bring them to same high standard as found in Riviera Resort!

Furthermore, by renting a villa in Riviera Resort, the ROI is so huge it makes this INVESTMENT IN LUXURY A VERY PROFITABLE PURCHASE!

Brexit optimism propels pound to multi-month highs

Carol Schleisman - Manager, CD Tenerife

The pound is roaring ahead so far in 2019, with Brexit news helping to propel Sterling to new multi-month highs over the past couple of weeks.

This has seen GBP/EUR strike a 19-month high as the pairing rose from €1.11 to €1.15, while EUR/GBP has fallen from £0.89 to £0.86. Meanwhile, GBP/USD has climbed from $1.28 to $1.32, while EUR/USD held at $1.14. The pound has found considerable support in recent weeks, with GBP investors becoming increasingly confident that the UK will avoid a no-deal Brexit, despite MPs overwhelming rejecting Theresa May's EU withdrawal deal earlier in the month. The euro stumbled in the second half of January as it was undermined by a mix of gloomy Eurozone data as well as increasingly dovish signals from the European Central Bank. At the same time the US dollar has found itself fluctuating in recent weeks, as the US government shutdown limited the release of domestic data and resulted in USD becoming increasingly sensitive to external influences.

Brexit is to remain a key catalyst for movement in the pound in the coming weeks with an upcoming parliamentary debate on Theresa May's 'Plan B' likely to be in the spotlight. Meanwhile the release of the Eurozone's latest GDP figures will likely be in focus for EUR investors, with the euro poised to soften if growth remained subdued in the fourth quarter.

Finally, a temporary pause in the US government shutdown will result in a sizable US data dump over the next couple of weeks, potentially prompting some swings in the US dollar.

DOG OF THE MONTH

Cira

Cira is a Sharpai cross who arrived at the Refuge around 4 years ago. She was terrified of people at first but now she has learned that not everyone will hurt her and has begun to trust again. Cira would love to live out her remaining years in a loving home – might YOU be able to offer her this?

If YOU would like to adopt Cira (or any of the other lovely dogs we care for) you can visit the Refuge direct, between the hours of 10.00am and 3.00pm, Monday to Friday every week. The Centro de Proteccion Animal de Tierra Blanca is located off Junction 15 of the TF-1 motorway by the restaurant Los Chasneros, just 200 metres above the motorway. They do not ask for adoption fees, only a donation of food, and photos to let them know how your new pet is getting on in his/her new home. Call 629 031 273.

ENERGY PERFORMANCE CERTIFICATES (EPC's) IN SPAIN

FEBRUARY 19 UPDATE

It is now 5 years and 8 months since the legal requirement was brought in for Energy Performance Certificates to be carried out, and the Canarian Government's official register shows that approximately 204,680 certificates have now been registered. Thus, 2,010 more residential and commercial properties have been inspected and issued their certificate in the month of January 2019. This is approximately 400 certificates less than the monthly average of 2,400 over 2018, most likely due to the festive time off over around the beginning of January.

For those of you who are not aware of Energy Performance Certificates (EPCs), they were introduced in Spain and its dependencies by Royal Decree on 5th April 2013. This Law requires that, from 1st June 2013, an EPC must be obtained by the owner whenever a domestic or commercial property is Built, Sold or Rented.

Selling your property

From 1st June 2013 property owners are required by law to present an Energy Performance Certificate when a property is placed on the market and prior to any advertising. When the property is sold, the Notary will need to see the EPC, termed the Certificado de Eficiencia Energética in Spain.

Renting your property

Either you or your agent, must obtain an EPC. An agent will not be legally no EPC is required until one tenant leaves and the property is offered for long term rental again. If your property was built after 2007 you should already have an EPC provided by the seller. If you only rent your property out on a short term basis, for less than 4 months of each year, you may not need to have an EPC. If you are the tenant your landlord or the letting agent should be property's energy use and typical energy costs, and recommendations as to how you may be able to reduce energy use and save money.

An EPC allocates an Energy Efficiency Rating, ranging from 'A' (most efficient) to 'G' (least efficient). The Certificate, registered with the Canarian Government is valid for 10 years.

How to arrange an EPC:

If you are selling or renting out property, you will need to engage an Accredited Assessor, who will visit your property to inspect and then produce and register your properties Energy Performance Certificate.

If you have any questions, or wish to arrange for me, Philip Wright, to carry out your energy Performance Certificate please call me on 667 757 323.

allowed to offer or advertise your property for long term letting without one. Where a property has already been let prior to 1st June 2013, able to show you the EPC for your property.

The simple tips to improve your health

By Alex Therrien,
Health Reporter,
BBC News

Experts say diversity of plant-based foods is also important

If you are contemplating a new year's health kick, you could be forgiven for feeling a little overwhelmed.

Do yoga, run, lift weights, cut the carbs, or the fat (depending on the particular diet that's in vogue), ditch the booze, reduce your stress. It is easy to feel like your life needs to be overhauled in order to be a healthy, happy human being.

But what if you were to make only one change?

We asked experts what single thing they would recommend people should do to improve their health, assuming they are an adult who is otherwise healthy and not a smoker.

Focus on the mind

It is easy to only think about our physical health. But according to Dr Nadine Sammy, associate lecturer for sport and exercise sciences at the University of Exeter, we should also be focusing on improving our minds by Building self-awareness, through things like meditation, can boost our mental and physical wellbeing building self-awareness. You might think of this as something that prevents us from embarrassing ourselves, but, according to Dr Sammy, it is much more than this.

Self-awareness is the ability to recognise and understand your moods, emotions and drives, and building it can play a crucial role in improving mental and physical wellbeing over time.

"By understanding your feelings, motivations and behaviours in more depth, you can begin to act more consciously in order to make better choices for yourself," she says. "For instance, what is your motivation to exercise? When are you most - and when are you least - likely to stick to your exercise routine and why?" There are many ways to do this, she says, including journaling, meditating, practicing mindfulness or simply making time for self-reflection after certain activities or at the end of the day. "Better understanding ourselves allows us to play to our strengths and build on our weaknesses, thereby spurring us on to be our best self," she adds.

Adopt a dog

A gym membership, a Pilates class, or a morning run - just some of the things that might come to mind when we think of becoming physically more active. But though going to the gym works for some of us, many will quit after a month or two, says Dr Rhys Thatcher, a reader in exercise physiology at Aberystwyth University. Instead, he recommends finding ways to routinely incorporate exercise into our daily lives. There are plenty of ways to do this, from avoiding the lifts at work to parking on the far side of a supermarket car park when you are doing the shopping.

But there are particular benefits to adopting a dog, he says. If you make sure to walk it for at least 30 minutes twice a day, you will be boosting your activity while also getting the emotional benefits of dog adoption. "This way you get to spend time outside, you get to exercise, you get a loyal companion and at the same time you get to improve the life of another living thing, all of which have been shown to improve physical and mental health," says Dr Thatcher.

Get your 30 a week

We have all heard about getting our five portions of fruit and vegetables a day. But according to Dr Megan Rossi, a research fellow at King's College London's department of nutritional sciences, it is not only quantity we should be striving for, but also diversity. We should aim for at least 30 different plant-based foods per week, she says. That is because plant-based diversity is thought to have a key role in good gut health. The bacteria in our gut - collectively

There are particular health benefits in adopting a dog, says Dr Rhys Thatcher known as the microbiome - have a profound role in our health.

Allergies, obesity, inflammatory bowel disease, Parkinson's, and even depression have all been linked to the bacteria in our gut. One way we can get more plant-based diversity in our diets easily is by being a little savvier about some of the foods we purchase, says Dr Rossi.

"Instead of just buying chickpeas go for the four-bean mix. Instead of buying one type of seed buy the four-seed mix," she says.

Smile more often

After the excesses of the holiday season, many of us will be planning to lose a couple of stone or setting a target for how many times we go to the gym each week. But the problem with "arbitrary" goals like these is that they are often difficult to achieve and failing to reach them can be demoralising, says Dr stick to any difficult or challenging changes for the coming year," says Dr Gill, a locum GP and researcher at Warwick Medical School.

But how do you go about becoming happier? Dr Gill recommends making one change in your life that will make you smile more often. At the same time, identify one thing that makes you unhappy and try to do something to improve it. "Get those two in the bag, and you'll be ready to look to other things to really give your health a boost further into the year."

And finally, get enough sleep

It may seem obvious, but we should all aim to get enough sleep (seven to nine hours a night for most healthy adults). Even being mildly deprived of it (five hours a night) can affect a range of cognitive functions, including decision making, says Dr Gavin Buckingham, senior lecturer in sport and health sciences at the University of Exeter. There are lots of things we can do to get a better night's sleep, from avoiding caffeine too close to bed to having a consistent bedtime.

But Dr Buckingham's top tip is to stop using electronic devices like phones and laptops well before bedtime or at least put on a filter that blocks the blue light in them.

Do not spend so much time focusing on arbitrary matters, do something that makes you smile instead

The real reason why Spaniards eat late

By Jessica Jones

Many travellers believe Spain's late mealtimes are a reflection of the country's laidback attitude, but that couldn't be further from the truth.

It is 10pm in the Madrid neighbourhood of La Latina, one of the city's oldest areas, most other countries, chefs would be hanging up their aprons for the night.

The time difference results in long summer evenings and 10pm sunsets and the cobbled streets thrum with the sounds of people enjoying plates of gambas al ajillo (garlic prawns) and cocido Madrileño (a hearty chickpea, pork and chorizo stew). Restaurants are bustling at an hour when, in

While travellers might attribute Spain's late mealtimes to the country's laid-back Mediterranean attitude, the real reason is a little more peculiar. Spaniards are living in the wrong time zone, and have been for more than 70 years.

Glance at a map and you'll realise that Spain – sitting, as it does, along the same longitude as the UK, Portugal and Morocco – should be in Greenwich Mean Time (GMT). But Spain goes by Central European Time (CET), putting it in sync with the Serbian capital Belgrade, more than 2,500km east of Madrid.

Spaniards are living in the wrong time zone, and have been for more than 70 years.

So why are Spaniards living behind their geographic time zone?

In 1940, General Francisco Franco changed Spain's time zone, moving the clocks one hour forward in solidarity with Nazi Germany. For Spaniards, who at the time were utterly devastated by the Spanish Civil War, complaining about the change did not even cross their minds. They continued to eat at the same time, but because the clocks had changed, their 1pm lunches became 2pm lunches, and they were suddenly eating their 8pm dinners at 9pm.

After World War II ended, the clocks were never changed back. However, in 2016, Spanish Prime Minister Mariano Rajoy announced that the government was working on a plan to implement a new workday schedule ending at 6pm as opposed to 8pm. One important element of the plan was evaluating the possibility of changing Spain's time zone from CET to GMT – something that has sparked a heated discussion throughout the country.

Being 60 minutes behind the correct time zone means the sun rises later and sets later, bestowing Spain with gloriously long summer evenings and 10pm sunsets. Those who run Spain's tourist resorts believe that more sunlight is a large draw for visitors. The regional government of the Balearic Islands – which include Mallorca, Menorca and Ibiza – is strongly against returning to GMT and has even campaigned to maintain year-round summer time (CET+1) to allow visitors to take full advantage of the region's mild winter climate.

But for many Spaniards, living in the wrong time zone has resulted in sleep deprivation and decreased productivity. The typical Spanish work day begins at 9am; after a two-hour lunch break between 2 and 4pm, employees return to work, ending their day around 8pm. The later working hours force Spaniards to save their social lives for the late hours. Prime-time television doesn't start until

With work days ending at 8pm, Spaniards save their social lives for the late hours

Meanwhile, in the north western region of Galicia, the sun doesn't rise until after 9am in winter, meaning that residents are starting their day in the dark.

"The fact that the time in Spain doesn't correspond to the sun affects health, especially sleep," said José Luis Casero, president of the National Commission for the Rationalization of Spanish Schedules, an organisation that has been campaigning for Spain to return to the correct time zone since 2006. "If we changed time zones, the sun would rise one hour earlier and we'd wake up more naturally, meal times would be one hour earlier and we'd get an extra hour's sleep."

Changing the workday would threaten Spaniards' customary siesta

Spaniards have traditionally coped with their late nights by taking a mid-morning coffee break and a two-hour lunch break, giving them the opportunity to enjoy one of the country's most famous traditions: the siesta.

It doesn't fit with reality.

Changing the workday would threaten Spaniards' customary naptime, although whether or not citizens would mind is still up for debate. A January 2017 study by research company Simple Lógica found that less than 18% of Spaniards nap regularly, while nearly 60% never take a siesta. In fact, business owners in many of the country's major cities and holiday resorts remain open during the midday break to cater to tourists.

Meanwhile, those who do nap express frustration when changes in their daily routine prevent them from sleeping mid-day. "We should really banish the siesta in Spain because it doesn't fit with reality," Casero said. "And with the change of time zone bringing meal times forward and giving us an extra hour of sleep, there would be less need for a rest at midday."

When it comes down to it, economist Nuria Chinchilla, an expert in work-life balance at the Instituto de Estudios Superiores de la Empresa business school in Barcelona, feels that quality of life for Spaniards is more pressing than preserving an extra hour or two of evening light for tourists.

"We have continuous jetlag," she said. "Tourism will always be there and tourists don't care. The number of hours of sunlight will be the same, whether it is an extra hour in the morning or in the evening."

Money in the Bank or Money in a Bond?

Make an informed choice!

The majority of us keep money in a bank account. Why? Because it is easy, relatively secure, and easily accessible. There is also a Deposit Protection Scheme in place which covers the amount in your bank account up to €100,000 or £75,000. So far, so good?

The Deposit Protection amount has been reduced from £85,000 which was the previous compensation limit. This means that if a bank or building society cannot meet its obligations and subsequently fails, or becomes insolvent, the maximum compensation you will receive will be £75,000 or £150,000 for a joint account (husband and wife).

What about growth on your savings?

Returns are not good, interest rates are hardly inflation-beating and your hard-earned cash is not really being put to work for you. In fact, the average savings account is paying less than 1% per year and some have even reduced to 0.2% or even 0.1%!

So how does this look in reality? Consider this: £20,000 in an average savings account with a gross interest rate of 1% will pay: £20,000 at 1% pa, equalling £200 each year before tax.

What is the alternative? - A Spanish Tax Compliant Bond

Setting up a Spanish tax compliant bond is no more difficult than setting up a bank account, and, once you have invested, you have easy access to your money: regular, or one-off withdrawals, to suit your needs.

which is subject to a strict legal and regulatory environment, to European Law, all applicable European directives and regulations and to meet European solvency margins. Under EU law, assets are to be used to repay policyholders should the company be wound up.

The returns over the last few years have been:

2012	2013	2014	2015	2016
8.0%	7.6%	7.5%	10.3%	5.8%

The growth on a Spanish Tax Compliant Bond is free of tax until a withdrawal is made -even then only the growth is subject to tax.
